

Drink Spiking

A teenage girl is putting on make-up, at a mirror. Upbeat, jazzy music plays, and the girl seems excited. Eventually, she leaves, choosing a light-coloured top to wear.

We see her approaching a house with a friend. It is dark, and party music thumps from the house. As she stands at the front door, we see that she is carrying a bottle of wine. Inside the house, the girls and her friend are ushered into a darkened room, where lights flash and loud music is playing. The girl pours herself a drink, and takes a sip, and then leaves the room.

While she is out, we see a boy approach the drink and drop something into it. When the girl returns, she takes a sip from the drink, and starts dancing. After a few moments, we see the girl start to stumble and then fall against her friend. The boy reappears, and – supporting the obviously collapsing girl – supports her out of the room and into the hall.

From outside the house, we see the boy take the girl out the front door and down the path. Text appears on the screen: 'Drink-spiking shatters lives.' We then see the girl being pushed away by the boy, and falling against a wall in slow motion. There is the sound of glass shattering. In slow motion, the boy walks away, with his hands in his pockets. Cut to text on screen: 'What would you do?'